Strike Cripples Ford War Production

MAINTENANCE CREWS IGNORE LEADERS' PLEAS

CIO Unionists Protest New Control, Force Shutdown of Rouge Departments.

International Head of Union, Army Officer Appeal In Vain For Cessation.

(By International News Service)

DETROIT — War production at the sprawling Ford Rouge plant was crippled seriously today as a strike of thousands of maintenance workers depleted supplies and forced the company to close down several departments in rapid succession.

The strikers, members of UAW-CIO local 600, reportedly were protesting against a new contract provision whereby maintenance workers are controlled by separate maintenance departments rather than by a central department.

They termed the provision an attempt "to break up the maintenance department."

Threatening to paralyze virtually all of the Rouge plant, the strike began yesterday at about 4:30 p. m. when a new departmental maintenance office was set up in one unit.

The midnight shift refused to enter the plant and by 8 a. m. more than 1,900 men were affected with a loss of 13,900-man hours.

Only enough men to maintain vital machines stayed on the job.

Part of the maintenance crew reported at the plant on the day shift this morning, but most of them failed to go to work.

Men who went to their jobs in the foundry department were soon forced to quit work when electricians cut off all power in the unit.

Similarly work was so stymied in the motor, press steel and axle buildings that each was shut down.

Maintenance workers are interwoven throughout the Rouge industries in such a way that the work stoppage affected the jobbing and production foundries, the foun-

WPB Wants to Set Clock Up Another Hour

Writes Letter to Oppose Ohio Effort to Set 'Em Back One.

BULLETIN

COLUMBUS —(AP)— Despite federal recommendations Ohio continue on its present time schedule for the war's duration, the temper of the newly-convened legislature appeared today to favor setting clocks back one hour.

(By International News Service)

COLUMBUS—During the summer months, Ohio may find its clocks advanced for a second hour of war time, instead of reverting Central war time, which would be one hour slower than the time used at present.

This became a distinct possibility today as WPB Chairman Donald Nelson told Gov. John W. Bricker that if Ohio switches from the Eastern to the Central time zone it might seriously upset the operation of war time for the nation as a whole.

"Additional savings along these lines may be effected by introducing a second hour of war time for the period beginning May 1 and ending Sept. 30," said Nelson.

"This additional hour will not affect the plant capacity situation as does the saving in winter, but it will bring about a reduction in energy production for the entire country of perhaps an additional billion kilowatt hours or more.

"This will also mean further reduction of the wear and tear on equipment, savings in manpower and in transportation facilities and will save the equivalent in energy production of about 600,000 tons of coal."

Meanwhile the partial appropriations bill, providing $79,286,992 for the operation of state departments for a maximum of six months, was to be submitted to the state senate today by State Finance Director Herbert Defenbacher.

Of the total, $68,259,060 is in general revenue funds, which is $1,800,000 higher than the corresponding sum in the partial appropriations bill of two years ago.

The increase is almost entirely due, Defenbacher said, to increased old age pensions and

OK'S $47,000 CUT IN COUNTY FUNDS FOR '43

Commissioners Sign Annual Appropriation Bill Which Calls For $640,881.

BRIDGE FUND SLASHED

Shrinking Relief Load, Drop In Repair Needs Results In Reduction.

Expenditure of $640,881.25 for Richland county governmental operations during 1943 were authorized yesterday when the board of commissioners signed the annual appropriations resolution. This is approximately $47,000 less than the 1942 figure.

Part of the reduction is in the county road and bridge fund which is certain to suffer considerable loss of revenue as a result of the decrease in the sale of gasoline and auto licenses.

Appropriations for the general operating fund of the county for 1943 totaled $424,669.50, which is approximately $9,000 less than the 1942 allowance. While operating costs in general show a slight increase so far as administration is concerned, certain items such as direct relief and repairs to county buildings have shown a marked decrease, making possible the smaller appropriation. Purchase of new equipment is practically impossible under war restrictions, county officials pointed out.

Heads of the various departments are free to make whatever distribution they see fit of the funds allotted them. To date, however, none had filed with the county auditor their schedules of spending since most of them had not been advised of the exact amount of the appropriation they are to receive. Only a few salaries are expected to be increased, the auditor said.

For the second consecutive year no appropriation is made for the retirement of debts as the county is still free of funded obligations.

Appropriations of $2,820 was made for the county's share of expense in supporting the Agricultural Extension service, over which some controversy had ensued with groups for and against its continuance presenting ap-

Russians Close In on Germans At Middle Don

Heavy Battles Rage On Five Fronts As Newest Circle Slowly Closes On Enemy; African Rains Slow Up Tunisian Campaign.

BULLETIN

LONDON—(INS)—Many German divisions originally stationed in France have been hurried to the Russian front in an attempt to stem the Soviet offensives, the Moscow radio said today in a broadcast recorded by Reuters.

(By Associated Press)

Heavy battles raged on five great fronts in the Russian campaign today, imperilling the Germans on a 1,000-mile line, with the Red armies of Col.-Gen. Nikolai F. Vatutin threatening to spring a fresh trap around Nazi garrisons in the Don bend 100 miles west of Stalingrad.

Soviet dispatches said two Russian forces lacked only 30 miles of forging the final link in a new ring around the Germans following the capture of Chernishkov and the Nazi air base at Chernishkovskaya 40 miles to the north.

Union of the two Red armies would encircle more Axis divisions in a region 50 miles west of another tightly-closed trap engulfing the survivors of 22 German divisions before Stalingrad.

Russian headquarters, denouncing German claims of success as "Hitlerite lies . . . as foolish as they are false," reported an unbroken series of Red army triumphs in five key sectors:

NORTHERN CAUCASUS—"Our troops continued their advance and occupied several populated places," the Soviet command announced.

"An especially fierce engagement took place in the area of a large village. The Germans threw considerable numbers of infantry and tanks into the attack. In hand-to-hand fighting with bayonets and rifle butts, Soviet troops routed the Hitlerites and drove them from the vilage."

Pressing their comeback drive through the Caucasus, the Russians were reported surging ahead from newly-captured Mozdok, gateway to the Grozny oil fields, and southeast of Nalchik.

MIDDLE DON—The German high command threw masses of reinforcements into one sector of the Middle Don, scoring a slight gain, but Red army tanks swung into the battle, killing several hundred Nazis and wrecking 49 enemy tanks.

A Soviet communique said the Russians encircled more Nazi garrisons in the drive across the Middle Don steppes toward Rostov and declared that in counter-attacks attempting to relieve the beleaguered forces the Germans lost 1,000 killed in yesterday's fighting.

SOUTHWEST OF STALINGRAD—Russian troops captured several more towns and dislodged the Germans from an important position after a flanking attack.

SOUTHWEST OF VELIKIE LUKI—Russian columns driving toward the nearby Latvian frontier routed the Germans out of a strongly-fortified center of resistance after smashing barbed-wire defenses and picking a path through minefields.

WEST OF RZHEV—German counter-attacks were repulsed.

A Moscow broadcast declared that Gen. Vatutin's hard-fighting legions seized 2,000,000 shells, Birch To Direct Red Cross In Quest For Big Fund.

L. W. Birch, chairman of Richland county chapter of the Red Cross, will head the chapter's first War Fund Roll Call when the campaign for one of the highest goals ever set for the county chapter, if not the highest, gets under way March 1.

The appointment made by a special committee of five with Robert Black, 683 Arlington avenue, as chairman, was announced today by Miss Miriam Hooper, executive secretary.

Although the county quota has not been released by the national organization it is expected to be in excess of $50,000 since it combines both the annual Roll Call that last year raised $22,000 and War Fund drive that in January, 1942, totalled $45,000.

M. G. Leggett, who has handled Roll Call publicity for several years, will act again as publicity director, the special committee announced.

Colder Weather To Decrease Hazards; 3 Rural Schools Remain Closed.

With an increasing casualty list resulting from falls on icy sidewalks and traffic accidents a forecast of colder weather for tonight was welcomed today as a means of lowering flood-swollen streams and for affording a breathing spell for tired street and highway crews which have worked ceaselessly to eliminate freezing rain and snow slush hazards on traffic arteries.

City schools again reported absentees today due to storm conditions while county schools at Union, Pavonia and Shiloh remained closed and at Willard high school 130 were marooned in outlying districts.

No injury toll was reported in the city since noon yesterday but Mrs. Salome K. Oswalt, Shiloh R. D. 2, suffered minor cuts and bruises when her auto collided with a truck driven by Wilbur H. Butts, 585 Burns street, on State Route 13 late yesterday, state highway patrolmen reported.

At Willard more than 130 high school students were staying in their rural homes when school buses from Norwich and Richmond townships were unable to cover their ice-bound

Richland county nimrods will put away their "shooting rods" today with the close at 6:30 p. m. of the 1942-43 hunting season.

Despite the fact that dog fanciers of the state cite Richland county "beagles" as outstanding of their kind, Conservation Commissioner Don Waters asserted that cottontails in abundance had survived the cannonading, but perhaps this is no fault of the dogs!

As in the case of pheasants where the broodstock was the heaviest ever when the season closed Dec. 5, Waters said the Buckeye rabbit population is the largest in years and appears to be of healthy stock with low incidence of tulmaria.

BURGLARS RIFLE SLOT MACHINES

One Looted at Bar, Officer Told Others Broken at Diamond Street Cafe.

Burglars last night obtained $15 from a juke box and broke open a slot machine at the Chocolate Bar, a restaurant at 188 North Main street.

Patrolman Clare W. Kyler, assistant identification officer, who photographed the machines for fingerprints, said he was told that several cash-paying slot machines had also been rifled by burglars at a cafe on North Diamond street, although no police report had been made.

A week ago this morning Municipal Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch called for enforcement of gambling laws which include "slots" as he sentenced a cigar store operator who pleaded guilty of possession of three "one-armed bandits."

The judge's written opinion challenged the city officials charged with law enforcement to either move against the "higher-ups" in slot machine operation, numbers writing, horse book operations and other forms of gambling or to ask for repeal of existing gambling laws.

BOARD ELECTS

Wyllie Again Named To Head City Park Board.

Mansfield's city park board reorganized last night by continuing Ed Wyllie as president, Robert S. Gibson as vice president, Carl H. Henkel as a member and G. V. Sowers as secretary.

Frank Burton was retained for a fifth year as superintendent of city recreational centers.

According to Burton no definite improvement program has been worked out, this feature being delayed until it is known how much money will be allocated by city council for park purposes.

In the budget approved by council last July the parks were ticketed for $24,900 or slightly more than was alloted in 1942 but the acquisition of John Todd park may require additional funds if any extensive installations are carried out the new play center, Burton said.

'Missing' Son Alive, Word Tells Family In Mansfield

Tragedy that enveloped the home of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin C. Linn, 246 Rhein avenue, last May turned to rejoicing today, for the Linns learned their son, Wilbur B. Linn, 22, reported missing in action, is alive.

A Navy department message from Washington today informed the anxious parents that their son, a seaman first class, is held prisoner by the Japs in Taiwan camp on the island of Formosa off the coast of China.

Wilbur Linn

The Linns haven't seen their son since he left for a navy assignment in the fall of 1940 and they had received no word of his fate since he was reported missing last May 9. Seaman Linn was in the Southwest Pacific when he was listed as a casualty. "We never gave up hope that we would hear from him again someday," the father told The News-Journal today. "Now we think we are going to see him after the war, if not sooner."

News of Seaman Linn's whereabouts came from the International Red Cross in Tokyo which reported the names of a number of prisoners of war to the U. S. Navy department.

The letter received by the Linns was signed by Rear Admiral Randall Jacobs, chief of Navy personnel. It said no arrangements had been completed so far for the release of their prisoner son.

REPULSED: Jap Destroyers Fail To Land At Guadalcanal

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—Secretary of the Navy Knox said today that the Japanese destroyers which reached waters off the northwestern end of Guadalcanal last Saturday apparently did not make a landing but did unload some metal drums of supplies, a few of which probably drifted ashore.

Next morning, the secretary told a press conference, American motor torpedo boats and planes from our Guadalcanal airfield in the Solomons went out where the destroyers had been and sunk all the drums they could find.

The secretary said the Japanese destroyer squadron had been under attack for about 275 miles during its approach to Guadalcanal with the purpose of landing supplies and possibly reinforcements for the Japanes troops virtually stranded there.

Originally there were 10 destroyers. They were attacked early Sunday afternoon south of Shortland island by a flight of Army Flying Fortressses which, however, observed no bomb hits.

This attack was reported Sunday in a navy communique which also described an attack by dive bombers on a destroyer detachment northwest of Rendova island, which is about 200 miles from Guadalcanal.

Knox said the destroyers attacked at Rendova and those attacked south of Shortland were the same and that the eight which survived the dive bomber—one was set afire and one was probably sunk—were the same eight

ON BEAM: AP Scribe Rides Plane That Helped Batter Crete

(Editor's Note: Edward Kennedy, veteran Associated Press war correspondent on the Mediterranean front, again has returned in a United States bomber to watch bombs fall on the Axis in Greek territory where he once dodged them when Greece still was free and being bombarded by enemy planes. By EDWARD KENNEDY

OVER CRETE WITH THE U. S. AIR FORCE, Jan. 2 (Delayed) (AP)—We are bombing Crete today as part of a great effort to knock that island out as a German air base.

We have a number of points to prove. One is that the Germans were not so smart as they thought they were when they took the island with parachutists so they could use it as an offensive air base against the Middle East.

We are trying to do the very thing they attempted to do to Malta a few months ago—and failed.

We took off from a secret assembling point somewhere in the Middle East in a large formation of B-24 Liberators. This raid is highly strategic. We are to go over their main fighter airfield at Kastella Pediate, southeast of Meanwhile schools at Union, Pavonia and Shiloh hope to re-open soon after being closed two days because of the perilous conditions of roads in that area.

In Mansfield, Street Commissioner Charles H. Hebel had crews spreading salt and cinders at points where traffic hazards still existed.

State highway department maintenance crews battled icy roads north of a line marked by Lima, Bucyrus, Millersburg and Cadiz but announced that elsewhere in Ohio highways are becoming passable. In the southern and southeastern sections of the state some roads remained closed due to flood conditions.

At Cincinnati it was reported the Ohio river is falling to near flood stage or below while Kentucky and Indiana communities downstream are catching the crest of the turbulent river swollen by snow thaws and incessant rains.

State health department officials were urging the vaccination of flood evacuees against typhoid fever and dispatched vaccine to treat 10,000 persons in the flood areas.

JAP DESTROYERS FAIL TO LAND AT GUADALCANAL

Knox Says Some Supplies May Have Been Floated Ashore To Beleaguered Troops.

which yesterday's navy communique described as having reached the "vicinity" of northwestern Guadalcanal where the Japanese forces are concentrated.

Knox said "the best information we have is that they didn't make a landing but were driven off."

He noted yesterday's communique said that not only was one enemy destroyer definitely torpedoed by U. S. mosquito boats but three possible hits were scored on two others.

Asked for comment on the navy's announcement Sunday that an American battleship had shot down 32 enemy planes when heavily attacked by Japanese aircraft off Santa Cruz island in the South Pacific, last October, Knox said that "the development of anti-aircraft defenses seems to have reached a very satisfactory point on our battleships—and in fact on all our ships."

"You mean we won't have a Repulse or Prince of Wales?" a reporter inquired referring to the loss of two British battleships to Japanese bombers early in the war.

"I'm predicting nothing," Knox said "all I can say is we will give them a hell of a fight."

Meanwhile Gen. Sir Archibald P. Wavell's British legions from India were reported moving near the big Japanese base at Akyab in Burma today and dispatches from the front declared it was uncertain whether the Japanese commander "intends to defend Akyab or withdraw without a fight."

British troops advancing along the Bay of Bengal coast were last reported within 25 miles of the port.

A Reuters (British news agency) correspondent said Japanese ships had been moving in and out of Akyab harbor during the last few days "but whether they were bringing up supplies or taking off troops is difficult to establish.

The Reuters correspondent said the puzzle would be solved shortly "when it is expected that British forces may contact the enemy" and declared that meanwhile the Japanese were carrying out harassing tactics by dashing along jungle waterways to execute short, sharp attacks.

On the New Guinea front, Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters reported tersely that American and Australian troops were recouping "preparatory to attack" against the last Japanese stronghold on the Papuan peninsula, at Sanananda point.

Fires were reported left in the enemy's defense positions after Allied warplanes swept overhead at low altitudes, dropped 11,000 pounds of 300-pound bombs on Japanese machine-gun nests and strafed enemy troops.

Frontline reports said Allied troops mopping up the Burma-Giropa point sector, which was occupied Jan. 3, overran the area faster and with less resistance than expected.

American clean-up squads criss-crossing the swamps between Buna government station and Giropa point yesterday counted the bodies of 119 Japanese killed the day before, in addition to 50 slain in the mop-up itself.

Warplanes carried out far-ranging sweeps over the seas battle theater, heavily attacking the Japanese airdrome at Lae, in northwest New Guinea, and pounding other targets at Finschhafen, above Lae, at Jacquinot bay on the southeast coast of New Britain and at Gasmata airdrome, New Britain.

Sees Better New Year For Allies In Pacific

SOMEWHERE IN THE SOUTH PACIFIC—(AP) Progress of the war effort in the south Pacific "very definitely" is making for a happier new year prospect this year than last, Maj. Gen. Millard F. Harmon said today.

General Harmon commander of army air and ground forces in the south Pacific, returned to his headquarters recently from an inspection visit to Guadalcanal.

Of the lull in the Japanese efforts there, he said, "It certainly is not going to last."

Harmon said he thought there "could be no question about the United States' present air superiority at Guadalcanal."

The general added that the amphibious phase of the Guadalcanal fighting for which marines were specially trained is over and that the army now is carrying on the work with the marine corps.

Candia and smash up their runway so no fighters can take off.

Then medium bombers—B-24 Mitchells—are to come in at a much lower altitude and destroy their planes on the field.

We ascend. We are so high now that no creature can live without oxygen at this height. No eagle or any other bird has ever flown so high as we are.

It is hard to see much at this height but we can see mountains and valleys of Crete and above all we can see one thing we want to see which is that runway and it stands out like a sore thumb.

We go across it and let the bombs drop. Do we get that runway? We not only get it but we get a fighter plane taking off on it. That plane will never take off on any runway again.

We have done our job and all we have to do now is to run home as fast as we can, which is very fast.

Just as we leave we see the medium bombers coming in much below us. That is their affair. We don't know it at the time, but those five Messerschmitts which hovered above us and did not attack us went after the mediums. The mediums had a rough time and shot down one fighter.

On that field were 20 fighters, several bombers and night fighters. Most of them are smashed up now and no fighters can get off that runway to resist other bombings by the RAF which also took off for Crete today and is over Tunisia too.

Soon we see land again.

Bevin Says 1943 Will Be a Bad Year For Hitler.

LONDON — (AP) "There is no doubt in my mind that before many weeks Hitler will be faced with the greatest disaster of the war," Ernest Bevin, labor minister and member of Britain's war cabinet, said today in a speech at a government training center.

"Everybody should be resolute and say that 1943 is Britain's big chance—a chance to take the weight off Russia and I hope it will be a chance to get in the knock-out blow," Bevin said.

dry machine shop, magnesium foundry, the armor plate building, rolling mill and approximately 30 carpenters.

The strike was continued today despite pleas of President R. J. Thomas of the International UAW-CIO; Paul Ste. Marie, Local 600 president, and Col. George E. Strong, chief of plant protection for the army air forces, who addressed the demonstrators at the plant.

Strong said:

"At present only a few thousand production workers are affected, but if the dispute is not settled tens of thousands can be affected.

"This maintenance group can practically tie up the entire Rouge plant."

Strong said "quite a bit" of tank work and "a small amount" of air force production was affected so far.

ALCOA Machinists Out on Strike

PITTSBURGH —(INS)— Inauguration of a rotating shift system resulted today in a strike of about 100 machinists at the New Kensington plant of the Aluminum Company of America which union officials termed unauthorized and unjustified.

The strikers were members of the day crew who balked at the reassignment to night shifts so that day work could be divided among the men of both shifts. Navy and Army ordnance officials and a conciliator from the federal labor department were called in for conferences.

peals to the commissioners body. The state shares equally in this cost with the county.

January 1, 1943 found Richland county in the best financial condition in many years with a balance in the general fund of approximately $40,000 and a county road and bridge balance of about $50,000. With a reasonable tax collection these balances should provide a cushion that will eliminate short term borrowing for operating expenses, according to Norman H. Wolfe, auditor, who advised with the commissioners concerning the budget.

Increases were granted to the County Tuberculosis hospital, the County Home and the Children's home, where purchase of food and maintenance supplies will be increased over 1942. All state institutional bills have been paid up to date.

Some comparative figures concerning the appropriations follows, the first figures being for 1943 and the second for 1942.

County commissioners, $12,350—$12,365; County T. B. hospital, $40,000—$38,000; County Home, $25,340—23,140; County Auditor, $27,337.50—25,595; Board of Election, $22,225—21,225; Treasurer, $18,905—19,105; Recorder, $11,310—11,310; Common Pleas Ct., $12,105—12,105; Probate and Juvenile Ct., $24,700—23,170; Clerk of Courts, $15,000—14,940; Sheriff, $29,611—28,675; Childrens Home, $28,100—26,400.

Spirit of 1943!

Modern methods, modern efficiency—but the same old flaming spirit of 1776. What else could give men the vitality to produce tanks, guns, planes, armaments in such enormous quantities? What else could enable the railroads of America to handle millions of troops with such precision and smoothness . . . to haul twice the tonnage of war materials pre-war experts estimated them capable of . . . to take over the great oil and miscellaneous cargoes of coastwise shipping, and yet keep war transportation rolling? That spirit, as much as mechanical excellence and natural resources, is America's strength. Its "secret weapon", Pennsylvania Railroad is proud to pay tribute to it, and to be a part of it.

FBI Succeeds After Others Fail

SUCH a penal institution as Alcatraz seems better fitted to incarceration of gangsters of the Touhy stripe than a more pregnable prison, like the one at Stateville, Ill., from which Touhy and five of his gang escaped last October.

Announcement is that one of the re-captured bandits is to be sent to Alcatraz and it may be wondered why similar escape-proof surroundings cannot be provided for more of the desperate criminals who are a menace to other people every moment they are at large.

An incident in connection with killing two of the Touhy gangsters and capture of the others who made the prison break is that this is another accomplishment that should be checked up to the credit of the FBI, as Chicago local police had made no headway in locating the hide-away of the gangsters.

It was by such a technicality as the gangsters having failed to "register for the draft" that the FBI was able to enter the case, and make a perfect job of the roundup.

Whatever objection there may be to the federal government "interfering" with local and state authority, the FBI seems much superior to other agencies in detecting crime and apprehending criminals.

China Is a Valuable Ally

AID TO CHINA is such a widely recognized obligation of the United Nations that such a situation as resulted in Chinese diplomats leaving Washington with a feeling that China is being treated "shabbily" is very unfortunate.

The attitude of the United States government is understandable. The president, presumably on the advice of the military strategists, wants to concentrate on the European war and clean up Hitler before directing full force against Japan. That strategy would probably be all right if it were not for the human factor involved.

The Chinese have been fighting the Japanese, our mutual enemy, for many years under greatest difficulties. When we entered the war against Japan, the Chinese were obviously able to help and expected real co-operation. They had the man-power, the courage and the will to lick the Japs; all they asked for was war materials and supplies. But apparently they have not been getting any more now than they got before.

It is hard, of course, to get war stuff to them, because of the Japanese blockade, but many think more could be done than is now being done.

Whatever She Did, She Did Well

ONLY those who knew her well could be really appreciative of the wide range of fine qualities which Margaret Pfingstag developed and consistently applied to her own work during many years of efficient service in the business office of Mansfield newspapers.

It was around the turn of the century that Miss Pfingstag took employment with The News, then under ownership of William S. Cappeller, and her exactness in accounting, dependable honesty, unfailing attention to detail, and constant interest in her work quickly established for her a place in the organization which she retained for twenty years. A period of ill health then necessitated a rest and she afterward found other office employment for a time, but was, by mutual good fortune, in position to return to newspaper office work when The Journal was established in 1930 and to continue with The News-Journal through the day preceding an attack of illness that resulted in her death.

Always "Miss Pfingstag" to those who knew her casually, she was better other than "Maggie" to acquaintances and ex-staffs of earlier years, and a sometimes serious manner cloaked a friendly and fun-loving disposition which served well to diversify the routine of life which she chose to follow.

Travel was her hobby and her vacations were planned to provide opportunity to visit many parts of America, each trip bringing material to be stored in her always alert mind. Whether by train, boat, automobile or plane, travel held a fascination and she quickly recognized the opportunities as means of extending her opportunities to "go places and see things."

"Maggie" [illegible] possible missed by her office associates [illegible]. Seldom has the quotation from [illegible] been more fitting: "Well done, good and faithful [illegible] have been faithful over a few things, I will make thee ruler over many things: enter thou into the joy [illegible]."

No Quick Defeat of Axis Sighted

WASHINGTON—Favorite topic in Washington, naturally enough as we look at the 12 months to come, is when the war will end—what will be its status on January 1, 1944.

Of course nobody knows, but judgments of experts in military and naval affairs, in morale, and in the differences between the various nations involved and their peoples, are always interesting. Hence an attempt to give a consensus of these right now seems worth while.

Germany: Best opinion is that, assuming no spectacular reversals of form, Germany will collapse as the next winter starts. None of our military men believe that Germany will be badly beaten on the field, probably no worse than they were in the last war, when they were merely driven back a little, never actually driven from French soil before the armistice.

If present news from Russia indicates a quicker end for Germany than that, remember last winter—and then last summer! Don't forget how many Germany divisions were reported trapped and surrounded last winter, but how in the following summer the Nazis took Sevastopol and almost took Stalingrad, not to mention fighting their way into the Caucasus.

THE two factors to watch of course are the extent of the Russian gains this winter, and the extent of the Nazi gains this coming summer. This is much more realistic, and by the same token gloomy, than is the average person's picture created by recent dispatches. But to make it as good even as this it is necessary to add the factor of morale.

The guess of a collapse next December, say, is NOT based on crushing defeat of the Germans as next winter sets in. It is based on discouragement all over Germany at the hopelessness of EVER conquering.

Japan: A very tough nut. Estimates as to the time it will take to crush Japan run all the way up to six years. The best judgment however, is from one to two years after Germany collapses. This is reported to be the view shared by Roosevelt and Churchill. It is perfectly true that Britain will help us smash Japan after Hitler is beaten. It is also true that this will not only increase enormously the amount of sea and air strength we can bring to bear, and cut down the difficulty of supply incalculably.

It is also true, however, that the Japs are very tough and are a very long ways from both Britain and America. If one stops to consider the slow progress made by the United Nations in the Solomons, and then remembers the Carolines and the Marshalls, the enormity of the task comes into focus.

Also, the Japs are not constructed mentally like the Germans. They have a religious fervor in defeat as well as in victory. They die willingly. And there are an awful lot of them. Almost as many as Americans if one adds in those in the overseas possessions!

Italy: Has collapsed already. Merely an occupied country.

TODAY IN HISTORY

This date in 1790 marked the birth of Zebulon M. Pike, discoverer of Pikes Peak, Colorado one of the United States' most famous landmarks.

Dave Boone Says:

THIS is universal Prayer Week, which the president urges everybody to observe because "without spiritual armor we cannot win the war, be worthy of winning it or be fit to make the peace," and I figure it won't take much urging.

We're doing a great job in planes, tanks and guns, but the production lines of faith can stand speeding up.

The papers are full of facts on the output of ships, bombs, cannon, etc., and it's a good thing to see some emphasis put this week on the over-all picture of how we're doing on the assembly lines of character and belief.

Our churches are the transports of faith and we should all get in there on the convoy.

We hear all about what the blast furnaces, mills and industrial fronts are doing, but not half enough about what the churches, the family altars and the churchmen are doing.

I ain't preaching, but it won't hurt a bit to link up a little of the emphasis of manpower with some on God power.

Timely Editorial

Five Lynchings Too Many.

While the nation's record of mob violence was slightly worse in the last year, the downward trend on the whole has been continued. It cannot be satisfactory until it shows a total blank for any twelve months. Lawlessness and brutalities that we are fighting in enemy areas cannot be condoned in any measure at home.

Through its department of records and research Tuskegee Institute makes its annual report on lynchings. In 1942 there were five, one more than in 1941, "the same as in 1940, two more than in 1939 and one less than in 1938." Yet the big change for the better is evident in the recollection that half a century ago these acts of mob violence had to be counted in the hundreds every year and even more recently by the scores.

Health And Diet

Health Questions Are Answered.

—By DR. CLENDENING

L. Z.:—By the time the average girl reaches the age of 17, does she usually stop growing?. Would a special diet or vitamin pills promote growth at that age?

Answer: There is very little growth from the age of 16 to the age of 21; not more than one inch in the average female. Vitamins have no influence on growth. Sometimes certain endocrine glands will have a favorable effect.

E. M.: Could you give me any information regarding the treatment for hernia? I have had this hernia about six months.

Answer: The only certain cure for hernia is by surgical operation which requires a rest of about two weeks in the hospital. Hernias can, however, be kept in place and kept from doing harm by wearing a truss.

Pat: Have sulfa drugs been of any benefit in cases of deafness?

Answer: Sulfa drugs have proved of some benefit in infections of the middle ear by clearing up the infection and thus improving the hearing, but in the average case of chronic deafness they are of no benefit whatever.

R. R.: Will a sun lamp used on one's face help dry up the lower sinus or help one by using it?

Answer: I do not believe that external application of heat or light ever gets to the source of the trouble in sinus infection.

W. G. A.: Would three vitamin B tablets daily have a tendency to increase stomach acidity to an extent that would cause nausea?

Answer: In some hypersensitive persons this has been reported to occur.

Tragedy of India's Untouchables Explained and Aspirations Told

—By DE WITT MACKENZIE

NEW DELHI, India—History provides few human tragedies so awful as that of India's 60,000,000 untouchables who are condemned by tradition to live as pariahs just as their ancestors have done for hundreds of years.

That word "pariah," says a lot, by the way. Here in this ancient land it is applied both to the person who is an outcast from society and to the gaunt wild dog which by day skulks outside the cities and towns and by night races wailing through the streets in search of garbage and offal with which to fill his hungry belly.

The untouchable will tell you that there isn't much to choose between the life of the man and that of the beast. Many would feel that the advantage rests with the dog. After all, he isn't condemned to such tasks as emptying night vessels for his betters and he is not unlucky enough to live as long as the man.

The story of these unfortunate folk is so fantistic in these days of alleged civilization that I'd like you to get it straight from one who was born in this class.

I've just come from talking with Dr. Bhimrao Ramji Ambedkar, champion of the untouchables, and I want him to tell you what this stigma means and how he is working to drag his people up out of the slough of despond.

You doubtless know Dr. Ambedkar already as a leader who is trying to secure a place in the sun for the untouchables under the new constitution which has been promised India. The doctor himself has escaped from the horrors of his class by a queer twist of fate which I shall describe later.

He is a lawyer by profession—a man of wide learning who has been educated in Columbia, London and Bombay universities. Now he is a member for labor in the viceroy's council and from that post he is fighting the battle of the depressed classes.

THE DOCTOR will talk to us in the drawing room of his fine residence which stands in a spacious garden on one of the quiet streets in New Delhi. He is a good looking man of perhaps 45 who thinks along straight lines and speaks to the point.

He is a striking exemplification of the truth that God made the untouchable the same as the other natives of India, but the religious caste system has challenged the work of the Almighty.

That caste system, with its innumberable ramifications, permeates the whole structure of society. Governments have striven in vain to break it down.

But let Dr. Ambedkar take up the recital:

"In order that you may understand our problem I must start at the beginning and give you some of the fundamental facts. One of these is that India is a land of villages. There are few towns and cities, but there are 700,000 villages.

"Now the villages consist of two sections. There is the village proper, and apart from it there is the settlement of the untouchables. This depressed class represents on an average perhaps one-tenth of the total population of the village.

"The untouchables are not a part of the village but are wholly outside its life, though for purposes of taxation they are regarded as in the village. These untouchable settlements have no economic independence.

"They have no land. In some places, like the Punjab, they are forbidden by law to own land. Their ancestors never had land and so there is none to inherit.

"Thus the untouchable is helpless and dependent on the village for his livelihood. All ways of earning a living are blocked to him except for the lowest and most menial tasks.

"Every village has its social code. Under this the untouchable is compelled to wear dirty clothing. He has no place to wash and if he tries to use a village well the people rise up against him.

"Untouchables may not wear ornaments. They may not even have metal utensils, but must use clay. I've known places where women have been assaulted for carrying brass pots to the well. The villagers took offense.

"The untouchable may not have a tile roof. He must use grass. His water supply must be separate. His school must be separate. His temple is separate. The whole administration of the country—the whole civil service, police, judiciary, etc.—is mainly in the hands of Hindus and partly in the hands of Moslems. Untouchables have no place in it.

"If an untouchable has a quarrel with the village then the police prosecute. The case always goes against the untouchable. There is no possibility of his getting justice.

"The government doesn't include the untouchable in the police service. The police have to arrest people and search houses. The untouchable can't do that. The same is true of the other civil services.

"We tried to remedy this situation by claiming for the depressed classes seats in the provincial legislatures. The untouchables have 151 seats of a total of 1,558 and these were given to us by way of safeguard.

"The problems are, first, how to protect ourselves from local tyranny in the villages and, second, how to get justice at the hands of the police and magistracy.

"Our seats in the legislatures give us a chance to protest against unjust laws, but this doesn't enable us to help the untouchables in the villages or to get justice.

"Here is my solution:

"All these scattered settlements of untouchables should be removed and regrouped into villages of their own. There is a lot of free land in India which can be cultivated. The government should provide the money and in 20 years the change could be made.

"We want to escape from perpetual slavery to the Hindus. We want to be free people in our own villages.

"As regards the police and magistracy we should have a certain number of places reserved for us in those security services.

"Thus we should have representatives of our own in these services to see that no harm was done to us.

"This plan would abolish untouchability. A man is an untouchable by inheritance. The whole village knows he is an untouchable. He can't escape identification.

"But if we transfer the untouchables to far-off settlements of their own, then the means of identification will be gone. An untouchable looks like any other Indian of his race.

"The untouchables suffer terribly from an inferiority complex. They can't live respectably or dress respectably. They can't get education or hold office. They have come to regard this as their destiny.

"The settlements will remove all this. That's what we want in the new constitution.

"We look to America to come to our rescue in the settlement of the Indian question."

"AND HOW, Dr. Ambedkar, did you escape from the fate of your people?"

"I am a product of history," replied the doctor. "We must go back to the Napoleonic wars. India was conquered at that time by the East India company with the help of Indian troops, not British. And it was the untouchables who fought for the company.

"This enlistment of the untouchables was a godsend to them, as it opened up a career and provided places in the army. My people were in the army and my father got an education and thought of giving me an education.

"I had to fight all difficulties though. I couldn't sit with the other children in school but had a stool in the corner.

"In 1892 the government stopped recruiting untouchables for the army because the Hindus wouldn't serve under or with them. This removed the only career open to an untouchable."

The late Gaekwar of Baroda, whom America knew well as a great humanitarian and worker for the good of his people, took an interest in Ambedkar and sent the young man to Columbia university where he obtained his Ph.D.

As time passed the doctor became noted for championing his people and today he is one of the outstanding personalities in India.

Synthetic Rubber Production To End Crisis, Jeffers Says

A PROMISE that if car owners will co-operate there is only one year of trouble ahead for American motorists was made today by William F. Jeffers, rubber director of the War Production Board, in a signed article in The American magazine in which he analyzes the tire situation in detail.

"Already we are giving retreads to civilians," he writes, "for essential driving. As production of synthetic rubber increases in 1943 and the fruits of our rubber savings mature, we will be able to increase retreading. If all goes well, in 1944 there will be new tires and retreads for almost everybody, and our passenger cars and trucks will be so well shot and the production of synthetic will be so great that tire rationing will exist only to the extent necessary to prevent waste."

Charging that if "selfish interests and misinformed persons" who opposed rationing had had their way the country's transportation system would have broken down within six months, Mr. Jeffers stated that the Nazis understood the situation and "spread propaganda far and wide in an effort to convince Americans that rubber rationing wasn't necessary."

"It would have been a tremendous Axis victory if they could have fooled enough Americans," he added.

Regarding the synthetic rubber situation, Mr. Jeffers reports:

"In two or three weeks the first butadiene plant, at Institute, W. Va., will be opened. It will produce at the rate of 20,000 tons a year from grain alcohol and will be the first unit of an 80,000-ton plant.

"At about the same time a butadiene plant will be opened in Baton Rouge, La., calculated to produce at the rate of 15,000 tons a year, from petroleum.

"Before July 4 there will be other butadiene plants in operation in Los Angeles, Charleston, W. Va.; Baytown, Texas; Pittsburgh, Sarnia, Canada; Port Neches, Texas; Borger, Texas; Toledo, Ohio, and Louisville, Ky. Plants will be building in Houston, Texas, and Lake Charles, La.

"All told, these plants, when they are going at full capacity, will produce at the rate of $800,000 tons of synthetic rubber a year. They'll all be in operation—and other new plants will be building—by Nov. 1.

"In conclusion, Mr. Jeffers reports:

"We are in an uncomfortable spot but if we have the complete co-operation of American car owners, there's only one year of real trouble ahead. If Americans drive slowly, use only the amount of mileage that is necessary in their work, share their rides, take care of their tires, we'll come out of this era of rubber rationing on the bounce."

A Farmer's Diary

Learning to Hunt

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

THE WEATHER had changed. It was zero at early morning, but by eleven the sun and southwest wind had shot the mercury up 20 degrees. With two days of hunting season still to go, I knew it would be good pheasant weather. They, like the rabbits, would be coming out of storm shelter.

A car came to our place, and parked on the barn bridge. Two men got out—one a lanky gray man, with an old worn shotgun, a ragged jacket, and a pipe which he filled with tobacco and tamped down as he talked with me. His companion a plump roundfaced boy had a brand new hunting coat and was armed with the latest model in all gundom. It had a sight that magnified, the stock was of finest black walnut, the barrel shone like burnished silver in the slanting sun. High leather boots and a cab with a bright read mark on the front completed his outfit.

"How'll it be if I take the dog and go on up the hill?" this young man asked, while the other visited with me.

"Sure—go ahead . . . he's never hunted before," the gray man twinkled to me, aside. "I don't think he'll get much game, but the dog'll give him experience . . . yes, the pup'll point before the bird flies," he shouted to the other, up the hill. "Don't shoot until it's a few feet from the ground, then aim at its head."

A few minutes passed. The dog had trailed a bird and pointed. It flushed and flew east not more than 30 feet from where the gunner stood. He aimed and shot, but the bird flew on, undisturbed. "That'n got away," my visitor remarked, smiling. The dog stood looking, but not satisfied. We watched the would-be hunter walk farther up the hill, the dog 50 feet ahead. Suddenly he stopped short and pointed, characteristically. The eager hunter moved closer. A lovely male bird flew up, this time 20 feet to the north of where he stood and aimed. He missed and the pheasant flew, in a graceful arc to the brush below the barn. We heard the dog whine in disappointment as he watched the flight.

He trailed farther east, and after about a half hour, pointed again, meaningfully. The inexperienced hunter scrambled cautiously up the grade and waited. This time the bird whirred swiftly above the dog while the hunter banged twice without touching a feather.

That was too much for the dog. He whined, and with one cold look over his shoulder at the blushing fat boy with the gun, he dashed headlong toward the parked car and scrambled into his accustomed place upon the cushion beside the driver.

His was the most disgusted face I ever saw on a dog.

Your Federal Income Tax

(Editor's Note: Because of the sweeping changes in the income tax laws covering 1942 income, more than usual importance attaches to this series of articles, prepared by the U. S. treasury department, bureau of internal revenue. Other articles, many of which deal with the new provisions, will follow.)

NO. 2 VICTORY TAX

The Victory tax is a temporary income tax, additional to the regular income tax, imposed by the Revenue Act of 1942. It is payable upon income for the year 1943; consequently taxpayers will find no reference to it in the income tax returns for the year 1942 which are now being sent out by collectors of internal revenue. However, payments on account of Victory tax will be made currently, by deductions, or "withholding" from wage payments made after Dec. 31, 1942. The amounts of the payments are required to be deducted by the employer, and remitted quarterly to the collector of internal revenue. When the taxpayer makes his income and Victory tax return for the year 1943 (due in 1944) he will show in his return the amount that has been withheld by his employer and claim credit for this amount in his return.

The amount withheld by the employer is 5 per cent of each wage payment in excess of the "withholding deduction." The "withholding deduction" is an exemption from tax on the first $624 of "Victory tax net income" for the year, or the proportionate amount corresponding to the payroll period. Thus, for an employe paid weekly, the amount withheld on account of Victory tax is 5 per cent of the amount of the wage payment in excess of $12.

A table of approximate amounts may be used by employers for computing this deduction. For example, the table provides that on weekly wage payments over $12 and not over $16, the amount withheld is 10 cents, and on weekly wage payments over $16 and not over $20 the amount withheld is 30 cents. Corresponding amounts are withheld for wage payments of other amounts and for other pay-roll periods.

The amount withheld is computed upon the total remuneration of the employe for the period (in excess of the withholding deduction), including remuneration in form other than cash. Thus, if board and lodging are part of the employee's remuneration, the cash value of the board and lodging must be included in computing the amount to be withheld.

Employers are required to furnish employees a statement of Victory tax withheld. These statements are not furnished with each wage payment but are made for the calendar year, or for the period of employment during the calendar year. If an employee is employed until the end of the year, the statement must be furnished by Jan. 31, 1944; if the employment ceases during the year, then the statement must be furnished within 30 days from the time of the last payment of wages.

As the statements will be evidence in substantiation of an employee's claim for credit for Victory tax withheld, they should be carefully preserved by the recipient.

Games were played and prizes were won by Mrs. Robert Haag and Miss Monoka Spurgeon. The date of the next meeting will be announced.

Auxiliary Meets In Fiesta Room

The Fiesta room at the Moose home was the scene, last evening, of a covered dish dinner for the Mansfield Chapter of the Women of the Moose.

Mrs. Nannie Lowman, the Chapter's recorder made several important announcements to the members who were assembled for the dinner, which was served at long tables.

The committee in charge of the affair included Mrs. Effie Keltner and Mrs. Nora Sowash. Cards were played at the close of the evening.

The time and place of the next covered dish dinner will be announced later. The next regular business meeting will be held Jan. 6 at the Moose home.

ROUND TABLE CLUB HAS MEMORIAL SERVICES

Associates of the Late Mrs. Mary Thornberry Have Impressive Services Monday at Women's Club.

AN IMPRESSIVE memorial service was held yesterday in remembrance of a former member, Mrs. Mary Thornberry, who recently passed away, by members of the Round Table club, when they met at the Women's Club.

Conducting the service was Mrs. R. G. Averill, president of the club. Mrs. J. W. Cook read a tribute to the late Mrs. Thornberry, which was written by Mrs. J. H. Todd, at the service at which several members took part.

A one o'clock luncheon was served at small tables. Seventeen members were present at the business meeting which was conducted by Mrs. Averill. Mrs. C. L. Chase presented the Greek Relief. The club voted to send $40 to that organization.

Mrs. C. C. Wagner and Mrs. S. A. Richardson had charge of the program. Mrs. Wagner led a discussion on "The United States and the New World." She based her discussion on an outline from the "Time Club Bureau."

Mrs. Richardson spoke on "Food Rationing" and gave in detail the need for food rationing and the farm's part in the producing of food. The group took part in the discussion of Mrs. Richardson's subject.

The next meeting will be held at the Women's Club, Jan. 18 at 1:30 p. m. Mrs. H. L. Princehorn will act as hostess at that time.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

MARY'S eyes held keen attention.

"That sounds ominous," she said. "You do not exact blind promises unless you have a serious reason."

"I have, in this case," I said. "I want you to promise me not to go outside this suite without Noel or some other man to protect you."

Dicky's saying that Mary would "crack a joke on the scaffold at the expense of her executioner" came vividly to my mind as I saw a mischievous twinkle in our niece's eyes.

"Would Steve qualify?" she queried, then ruefully added "I see that 'we are not amused.' Okay, Queen Victoria. You have my promise. But please see that the man you choose for my guard is no older than Uncle Dicky. If your revered father or my revered papa-in-law starts escorting me, I shall have to arm myself with a blackjack to protect him."

Despite my irritation I could not keep back an appreciative smile, and Mary's lips quirked into an answering grin.

Mary Is Curious

"I breathe again!" she exclaimed melodramatically. "The scepter is extended. And now I confess a gnawing hunger of curiosity about your real errand here.

"I'll satisfy that hunger in a minute," I told her, "but first I want to telephone my father. And please don't be surprised at anything I say."

"Me! I got over being surprised at you when I was a child in pigtails and pinafores," she said. "You're probably going to ask for a cordon of guards around the palace."

I tried to keep astonishment out of my voice, for she had hit the nail precisely on the head. From somewhere deep within me had come an intuition of immediate danger to Mary from some quarter, and I meant to act on it without delay.

"Not a cordon," I said casually; "only one."

I telephoned my own apartment without delay.

"Father?" I queried as I heard his answer, quick and anxious, "Yes. Is everything all right?"

"Yes, so far," I said, "but if possible will you send my blue portfolio over to me right away? It is in my desk, and I shall need it for several hours, as I do not want to go back there at once."

I heard the quick intake of his breath, but his voice was casual.

"Stay as long as you like," he said. "I do not need you here, and I'll send over the blue portfolio immediately."

As I hung up the receiver Mary gave me a shake of exasperation as well as excitement.

"I warn you!" she said. "Normally, I'm the soul of patience, but now I'm not going to wait a second. Just what does 'blue portfolio' mean? Of course it's a code word."

I took her hands from my shoulders and held them while I looked steadily at her.

"Yes, it's code for guard. Adams or someone else will be here shortly, and will be stationed outside your door until I am sure all danger for you is over."

CHAPTER XXVII

"You knew Aline had left me?" Andrew Havens asked.

Dina brought startled eyes to his face.

"Left you!"

"Last Sunday. Yep," the man said briefly.

Her own interest in this situation touched Dina with a first premonitory finger of fear. She turned and went to a great leather bench, and Andy sat down beside her.

The little gallery was flooded with November sunshine and deserted except for themselves. It was 11 o'clock in the morning; other visitors would trickle in to see the Havens portraits before noon, and the afternoon would find a smart crowd there, talking, drinking tea, studying the canvases that lined the walls. But it was empty now.

"But, Andy, what for?" the girl said.

"I don't know." He sighed, crossed his arms, leaned back, his lips pursed and whistling, his narrowed eyes on space.

"Quarreled?"

"Nope."

"She's just—tired?"

"Guess so. I don't understand her. She says I never have. We moved down to Bill Cutter's place at Los Altos in June, you know. I thought it was swell down there. Everything blooming and warm, and we had Bill's old Looey Koo to run things. We couldn't go on in town; it was costing us more per week than I make in a month. Orders had stopped."

"Well, in August Aline said she wanted to go east to see her children. Your sister-in-law was going and she wanted to go with her."

"My sister-in-law? Oh, Caroline! Yes."

"She wanted money; she didn't know how much—a couple of thousand. Of course I didn't have it. That fussed her. Where could we get it? I said we couldn't get anywhere.

"Afterward she told me she'd tried to borrow it from Rogers, but he said not while she was my wife. Then she said she was sick of the place and of me and she was going to stay with—oh, someone—Mrs. Clyde, I think. She went off to the Tahoe and to Lake Tahoe, was gone about six weeks. When she came back she began to talk about divorce."

A silence. Then Dina said timidly:

"How do you feel about it? I know how you love her!"

Suddenly the man sat erect and looked at her with bright, angry eyes under his tumbled hair.

"No, I don't love her; I suppose I never did," he said definitely in a hard voice. "I was carried away, as she was. She is one of the beautiful women of all time; I was flattered; it was all drinking and dancing, moonlight and cocktails. I don't know what happened. But it breaks me up to—I mean I'm all mixed—it doesn't make sense!"

"She wants to marry Rogers," Dina said calmly.

"She'd throw him over at the drop of a hat if she got a better chance. She has twice," Andy answered moodily.

"She may not get a better chance this time," Dina observed. The man looked at her curiously.

"But he's—he's married to you!" Andy stammered.

"Yes, but I'd never refuse Rogers anything he asked of me," Dina said, her voice dreamy and her eyes far away. "He's been too wonderful to me; he's done too much for my people—"

"But if you love him, I'd not give him up to anyone like Mine!" Andy protested. "She's shown him twice what she thinks of him. She did love me," he went on. "We had some wonderful times together at first. But she's never loved him."

"You see, there are 20 years between Rogers and me, Andy, and it makes what he feels for me and what I feel for him, more like what a father and daughter might feel," Dina began with some difficulty.

"You've got a child!" the man countered, bewildered.

"Yes, yes, I know."

"You don't mean that you and Rogers might separate so that he and she could get married?"

"Well, there's no plan," Dina said hesitatingly, "but he has loved her all his life."

"Well, for love sakes!" Andy ejaculated under his breath.

"If Aline and Rogers are really planning anything," he presently added, "I'd like you to know—What is it?"

For Dina, suddenly pale, had gotten to her feet and turned so that her back was toward the entrance to the gallery.

A young man and a middle-aged woman had entered, the one a tall blond young fellow in well-tailored clothes, an overcoat over his arm, the other a fashion plate in furs, white gloves, trim small hat.

"That's—that's Caroline—that's Mrs. Holland," Dina said hurriedly. "I have to go—come with me."

The room was small; it was inevitable that the new arrivals should see them. They were all face to face. Andy was the first to speak.

"How do you do, Mrs. Holland? Aline told me you were back."

"How do you do?" Caroline Holland repeated. She faintly inclined her head. "Geraldine," she added briefly.

The skylights and the floor and the pictures in their gold frames began sickeningly, slowly to reel together. Dina blindly put one hand and steadied herself by gripping the back of a leather seat.

"My son, Andy," Caroline said. "You remember each other at Palm Spring, last year?"

"Oh, hello, Vere. Glad to see you again," Andy said.

"Hello, Dina," Vere said, clearing his throat, speaking in a low tone. She gave him her hand; it was as cold as ice.

"Vere—Vere." She had to say it twice to make herself heard. She stood looking at him while he held her hand.

"I wanted to see your portrait," he told her. "Everyone's—everyone's talking about it."

Dina had turned from the others in an instinctive need to keep them from seeing her face. Now, still clinging to the back of the great leather davenport for support and fighting to the best of her power the vertigo and weakness that enveloped her, she blindly indicated the picture.

"It is good!" Vere said.

"I don't think it looks very much like me, but it is a lovely picture." Dina was regaining her self-control. She was many, many years older in experience now than was this boy with whom she had danced at Colfa's a year ago. He could not reach her. She was safe in another world.

"Dina," Vere said in a low tone, "will you let me tell you something?"

"But this is the picture everyone thinks is so fine," Dina said hurriedly. She nodded her head toward Morning Trio. "That's Andy's wife at the piano," she added.

"I know. I was at Palm Springs when he was painting it." Vere reminded her.

She had steered him away once from dangerous ground. She fenced again.

"Have you the time, Vere? I'm supposed to be keeping a 12 o'clock appointment.

"We're late," Dina told Andy, and there was warning and appeal in her glance. "Good-bye, Caroline. Good-bye, Vere. Andy," Dina murmured, taking his arm, propelling him toward the door, "we said quarter to twelve, and my dentist's at twelve—Oh, get me out, stay with me!" she whispered when they were out in the gallery. "Come with me, Andy!"

"I'll go with you anywhere!" he said, bewildered, holding open the door, accompanying her as she went hurriedly into the street.

"Dina," Andy said, "are you lunching with me?"

"I can't. I'm meeting Rogers in 20 minutes."

"May I suggest a short session with powder and lip red or rouge or somethin?"

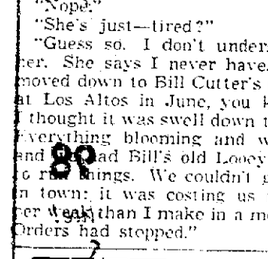
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

INESCAPABLE LOGIC

Conventions of bidding which have acquired almost universal acceptance among players of the upper levels of bridge in nearly all areas, that their logic is inescapable. The meanings attached to bids in a lot of situations are so precise that a very fine mind could figure them out if he never had been told about them. One of these is the compulsion involved when partner bids a higher suit after earlier bidding a lower-ranking one. Unless you are sure of very unusual circumstances, you must not pass this, but must either bid of some kind or double, interrogating opponent pass it on to you.



(Dealer: North. North-South vulnerable.)

North	East	South	West
1 ♥	1 ♠	2 ♣	Pass
2 ♥	Pass	3 ♦

Yes, there are players in the world who will pass a bid like that 3-Diamonds call. North in this rubber game was one of them, so at 3-Diamonds the hand got played. There was no thinkable excuse, unless a part-score situation existed, and that contract would furnish the balance needed for game, or unless North had opened on a hand so extremely weak that he had been making what amounted to almost a pure psychic. Neither of these circumstances existed, however.

The logic of this sort of call—as near to an absolute one time bore as there is—should have been clear to North, even if he never had heard of "reverse" bidding. South having shown two suits, and his bid of the second calling for a preference between them if North had any, it would have required a bid of four for North to show club preference. Hence South was taking responsibility for some that high, even if North had no strength above his minimum already shown. Hence North should have found some other bid, rather than pass.

Correct answering by North would have been 3 Hearts, and South would have gone then to 4 Hearts. No possible defense could have bothered that as only two tricks would have been lost, one in trumps and one in spades.

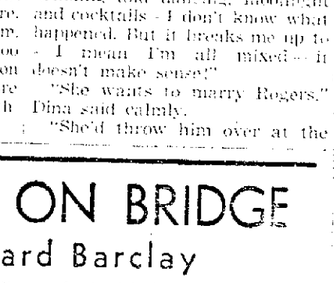
Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

What defense can make it impossible for South to score game on this deal at No Trumps?

Sport Podge

by REX HESS

This is Rex (5 per cent) Hess, hurrying back to work before victory tax and the boss eliminate my pay altogether.

Or—

This is the old Podger, playing fugitive from the flu, and warning one and all that your cheeks won't have roses while you're blowing rosy noses.

Or—

Or don't you think this has gone far enough?

Of course there is or and there is ore, and you take ore for instance, there is gold in them thar hills. And or, there is cold in them thar chills.

Oh, oh. Old flat foot flu-gee's still got me. The fever is still on and I'm all confused.

Hoping you are the same, I beg to remain, and I do mean beg.

Now there are some who might think it is a mighty fine thing to have the boss take over your job when you are ill, and I always thought so too—until now.

Of course I knew that Don Lindsay, the old Lorain sports scrivener, rather enjoyed tossing a tasty bit of type in this space on those occasions when he has been called upon to fill up this column, and so I worried not at all when I tottered home with the flu on New Year morning.

"The old boy will come through again," I told myself, and darned if he didn't—on Saturday.

And then came Sunday

While I am lying there flat on my back, with the fever popping out of my eyes, and every square inch of me aching as though I had just had an altercation with the Chicago Bears, and lost, my manager ups and says:

"Look here, it says in the paper that you cannot get a raise because the government won't let you, and you had better hurry back to work because I do not see where it says you can't be fired."

So I am hurrying back with all possible speed.

* * *

Well, now, if I had my way,
I would stay in the hay.
And I'd never get up 'til spring.

Privately and strictly between us two, I felt it my bounden duty to hurry back and rescue Lindsay from his memoirs.

After he got to running around with those New York Celtics yesterday, there was only one direction left for him to go.

Back to the Baltimore Orioles of the John McGraw era, or the old Cincinnati Red Stockings.

Oh, no. NOT THAT!

Diamond Moguls Consider Travel

CHICAGO—(AP)—Straggling into the Palmer House today for Commissioner K. M. Landis' emergency parley, travel-weary baseball officials were more determined than ever to draw up a rigid mileage conservation plan.

Most "lobby talk" consisted of mutterings of train delays rather than speculation of what the commissioner has up his sleeve for a 1943 wartime program after conferring recently with ODT Director Joseph B. Eastman.

Representatives of the 16 major league clubs agreed the baseball situation would be disclosed as it really exists, and they expected a short, cut-and-dried conference.

During the past month there have been reports as to where and when clubs will hold spring training—lengthy trips to California, Florida, Texas and elsewhere cancelled.

Only the Boston Red Sox, who will condition at their back door in Tufts college gymnasium, appeared to have definitely solved their spring conditioning before coming to the meeting.

Fight Results

PHILADELPHIA—Lulu Costantino, 25½, New York, outpointed Ellis Phillips, 130½, Philadelphia, (10).

NEW ORLEANS—Willie Pep, 129½, Hartford, Conn., outpointed Vince Dell Orto 133½, New York (10).

HOLYOKE, Mass. — Sonny Horne, 91, Niles, O., outpointed Philip Notman, 149, Detroit, (10).

OLD TIMER DIES

CINCINNATI—(AP)—Relatives here were informed that John A. "Biddy" McPhee, 83, Cincinnati Reds second baseman from 1883 to 1900 and then Redleg manager for two years, had died in San Diego, Calif.

DiMaggio Hints He'll Quit Game

Won't Say Whether It's For Army or Navy.

SAN FRANCISCO—(INS)—The possibility that Joe DiMaggio, baseball's highest salaried player, is through with the game for the duration, was seen today in word from Reno where the Yankee slugger has gone ostensibly to attempt a reconciliation with his estranged wife, the former Dorothy Arnold of the screen.

In an exclusive telephone interview with Prescott Sullivan, San Francisco Examiner sports columnist, DiMaggio reportedly "tipped his mitt" in an unguarded answer to the question as to whether he believed his playing this season would suffer from lack of spring training.

"Spring training won't concern me this year," DiMaggio replied.

The Yankee Clipper refused to elaborate on that remark, Sullivan said in his column. Asked it this meant whether he had decided to get out of baseball altogether or was planning to enlist in the army or join his brother, Dominic in the navy, DiMaggio said:

* * *

"I'm not saying. You can draw your own conclusions."

Apparently impatient to bring the interview to a close, DiMaggio then said.

"I'll be back in town (San Francisco) in a couple of days. Then I'll tell you what I'm going to do."

Pressed if this meant that he was going to announce his retirement, the Yankee outfielder answered shortly, "Mebbe. I'll see you later."

SHOOTER REPORTS

FREMONT—(AP)—Delbert R. Bundschuh, 31, runner-up in the 1941 Grand American Handicap trapshoot at Vandalia, said he would report for army duty today at the Camp Perry reception center.

THEY FOUND GAS FOR ROSE BOWL GAME TRIP

LOS ANGELES—(AP)—The biggest crowd drove the most automobiles in Rose Bowl history to see the Georgia-UCLA game—despite gasoline and tire rationing.

Paid attendance was 93,117, compared with the previous high of 91,500 for the Nebraska-Stanford game two years ago. And Bill Ackerman, UCLA graduate manager, estimated 10,000 persons were turned away. The count of 30,000 automobiles was 8,000 above the old record.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

NEW YORK—(AP)—There's been a lot of talk about post-war planning lately, so why not do a little of it in the sports field too. . . . Nobody ever has proved that international sports lead to friendship. But we still believe that it's easier for people to understand one another when they play the same games than when they remain total strangers. . . . And the best games we can think of for international competition are soccer football and basketball. . . . Soccer is known as the game that is played in every country and only the U. S. apparently doesn't give it the attention it deserves. . . . Basketball is a local product, but maybe our soldiers and sailors will give it a good start in other countries.

SUGGESTION.

Walt Hanson of the Long Branch Record (N. J.) recalls a conversation with Jack Doyle, old-time Tiger scout, that is worth the attention of big-league ball clubs in these days of training near home. . . . Doyle's idea was that the teams should play exhibitions whenever possible in the smaller cities near their home towns. . . . In that way they would build up friendship and interest new fans right in their home territory.

TODAY'S GUEST STAR.

Don Donaghey, Philadelphia Evening Bulletin: "Judge Landis' wig saved itself a lot of trouble when it turned gray at leisure years ago."

DOTS ALL, BROTHERS.

Jockey Don Meade must have won some sort of a 1942 championship for getting in wrong with the racing stewards. He was punished four times during the New York season, getting penalties ranging from a $25 fine to a suspension from October to the end of the year.

WHIRLY HANDED TOP WEIGHT AT HIALEAH

MIAMI, Fla.—(INS)—Top weight of 122 pounds, third highest impost in the eight-year history of the $25,000 added Widener handicap at Hialeah park March 6—has been assigned to Whirlaway for the mile and quarter race, it was announced today, along with the field of 49 nominees for the event.

Rated second to Warren Wright's greatest champion was Charles S. Howard's Mioland, which drew an impost of 126 pounds.

Amateur Mitt Tourney Flops

Only Five Fighters File Entry Blanks.

Cancellation of the Friendly House amateur boxing tournament was announced today.

The tournament which was to be an elimination for the Cleveland Golden Gloves show, was called off when only five of an expected total of 40 applicants showed interest in the show.

Mike Wentz, athletic director at the Friendly House said however, that a team of Mansfield fighters probably would be entered in the Cleveland affair if it can be done without an elimination tourney.

JOE VISITS MOTHER

DETROIT—(INS)—Capt. Joe Louis, heavyweight champion of the boxing world, now a member of the U. S. cavalry, was in Detroit today to visit his mother who has been hospitalized with pneumonia for six days.

DECIDE ON FATE OF SUGAR BOWL CONTEST

NEW ORLEANS—(AP)—Sugar Bowl officials meet Thursday night to decide whether to cancel the Sugar Bowl football game for the war's duration or wait for the government to decide its future.

Prevailing sentiment among board members appears to be outright abandonment of the classic would be unwise.

Big Ten Clubs Chalk Up Wins

But Purdue and Chicago Fall By Cage Wayside.

CHICAGO—(AP)—Big Ten teams except Purdue and Chicago came through with victories last night in a five-game program which warmed them up for the start of the conference campaign Saturday.

The Badgers outlasted Hamlin's national intercollegiate champions of St. Paul, 41 to 37.

Undefeated Michigan and Indiana stretched their winning strings. The Wolverines nipped Michigan State 29 to 26 in a defensive show.

The Hoosiers pasted Butler, 42 to 27, with Sophomore Ward Williams clustering 11 markers.

The Reverse boys of Chicago kept their losing record intact, expanding it to 25 consecutive setbacks by bowing before DePaul's powerhouse, 68-20.

Purdue dropped its fourth decision in seven games, bowing to Great Lakes 48 to 43, and Washington State topped Bradley Tech of Peoria, Ill., 53 to 38.

Gospel Hoopsters Try For Loop Tie

Grace Gospel's cagers hope to throw the Y. M. C. A. Senior Church league race into a deadlock tonight with a victory over Congregational.

The Gospel five has won three games without a defeat and a win tonight would even them with St. John's, who are idle.

In other league games, First Lutheran meets last place Episcopal at 7 o'clock Baptist tangles with Central Methodist at 8:30 and St. Matthews faces St. Luke's at 9:15.

The Grace Gospel-Congregational tilt is scheduled for 7:45.

W. Fifth And Prospect Lead

Each Turns In 24-9 Grade League Victory.

With W. Gouge, lanky center, connecting for ten points on five buckets West Fifth took the lead in the Northern grade school cage league yesterday, trouncing Bowman 24-9.

Two games were played in the Southern league, where Prospect took the lead with a 24-9 triumph over Hedges. Corcoran got 13 points.

Tied 10-10 at the third quarter, Brinkerhoff defeated Woodland 16-11. Stretch scored 12 of the 16 points for the winners, and Jesson got the other four.

EACH DAY OF THE WEEK ..... TO .....

ADDRESS .....

On Page 1 of the paper each day you will find a list of the advertisements to be checked that day.

All you have to do is to decide each day which Large Ad, which Medium Ad and which Small Ad you think will do the advertiser the most good. Just write three names on this blank each day.

$750.00 in awards go to those readers whose selections are nearest to what the majority of readers think. Every week is a separate survey with a dozen or more cash awards each week.

Every member of any family may send in one answer each week and there are many awards each week, but only one award for a good answer will go to any one family in any one week.

I THINK THESE ADS WILL DO THE ADVERTISERS THE MOST GOOD.

You are NOT required to write a letter to receive an award.

The awards are decided on the selections above. We would really appreciate it, though, if you would write a note saying what you DO NOT LIKE and . . . also . . . WHY YOU LIKED some of the good ads.

We sincerely want your suggestions and ideas of how we may improve our advertising service for your benefit. Write your letter in your own way! It's the thoughts and suggestions that matter. You are not being "judged" by your letters. Actually they have nothing to do with the awards . . . but . . . they will be helpful by giving additional information to our merchants.

Your criticisms and suggestions will be given to the merchants to help them to improve their advertisements BUT the merchants will NOT be given the names of those who write the letters. This is so you may say just what you really think without embarrassment.

HOROSCOPE

For Wednesday, January 6.

Continued activity and movement into important grooves under great tension and excitement. However, there may be sudden as well as stubborn resistance to cope with and vanquish. The mentality should be keen, shrewd and ready to surmount dangers and obstacles.

If It Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may expect an exciting, enterprising year with much activity expended in attaining important and probably difficult objectives. The mind and energies while found splendidly stimulated to cope with all sorts of difficulties and strange situations, yet may be menaced by sudden dilemmas and delaying obstructions.

A child born on this day may be brilliant and keen mentally, with much energy, initiative and force of character, although inclined to lavish use of funds.

welfare department increases for food and wages to lower-salaried workers.

However, the measure which is effective only until the general appropriations bill is passed later in the session, is $1,600,000 under a one-quarter share of the last general budget bill.

The only entirely new appropriation in the bill is an item of $60,500 for operation of the state defense council. There was no provision for local defense council funds since Defenbacher held that was a matter of policy for the legislature to decide.

The regular biennial budget bill is almost ready to submit to the lower house, Defenbacher said. The only major figure still lacking is that for the school foundation program.

The two branches were to meet jointly in the house chamber at 2 p. m. to canvass the November vote as required by law.

Musical Spectacle.

Embellished with elaborate production numbers "Yankee Doodle Dandy," playing at the Ohio, traces the career of one of the theater's greatest showmen, George M. Cohan. James Cagney plays the leading role and the cast includes Walter Huston and Rosemary DeCamp as Cohan's parents, Joan Leslie as his wife, "Mary," and Jeanne Cagney and Richard Whorf. * * *

City Saga.

The saga of a great city is told in "Pittsburgh," the Madison attraction starring Marlene Dietrich, Randolph Scott and John Wayne. Scott and Wayne are seen as miners, rivals for the attention of another miner's daughter, played by Miss Dietrich. The romantic conflict that motivates the plot is presented against the exciting story of how industry has geared itself for America's "all-out" war effort. "The Falcon's Brother," with George Sanders, Tom Conway and Jane Randolph is the second picture.

War Adventure.

Thrilling adventures of a small band of refugees, an old man and a flock of children, across France ahead of the advancing German armies are depicted in "The Pied Piper," the Ritz attraction. Monty Woolley has the leading role in the picture adopted from Nevil Shute's great novel by the same name and the cast includes some of the screen's prominent child actors, among them, Roddy McDowall. "The General Died At Dawn," with Cary Grant is the co-feature.

Western Chronicle.

"Men Of Texas," screen chronicle of the early west when there were territorial disturbances in the great southwest, is the attraction at the Park. Robert Stack, Brod Crawford and Jackie Cooper top the cast and supporting players include Anne Gwynne in the romantic role opposite Stack. "Meet the Stewarts," with William Holden and Frances Dee shows how one young married couple have fun and still cope with the budget.

BROADWAY

—By Dorothy Kilgallen

The Legends of Broadway.

(No.—The Kid Was Psychic.)

Remember back two or three years ago when a uniform was a rare sight in a night club; when a girl could get a date if she could smile; when the phrase "fill 'er up" was heard at gas stations; when you could eat a steak every night, if you could afford it; and when people who talked about the nearness of war were "hysterical alarmists"?

Kilgallen

This story takes place in those days, three autumns ago, in the now-dead Kit Kat club, on a Saturday night.

It was a very good night at the Kit Kat. Spenders galore were at the little tables, and corks were popping like toy guns in the hands of a hundred children.

Franchot Tone, Adelaide Moffett, Carol Bruce, Curly of the Three Stooges, Bruce Cabot and Claire Dodd were scattered at various points around the room and in a far corner two of F. D. R.'s sons were chatting with pals.

That was the scene when the Kid entered the room.

He was alone and thirsty, and he fought his way through the crowd, looking for friends to sit with. He was down from Yale for the week-end, a tall, lean, good-looking kid with light hair and a wide smile, and he knew half the people in the club that night. But he chose to sit with another young, tall, friendly-looking fellow who was surrounded by two pretty girls.

They were drinking wine, and the young host was sending bottles of Cordon Rouge '28 all over the room.

Toward dawn, one of the girls—a little Broadway lass—pointed to a boy who was limping out of the place on crutches.

"Look," she said. "Isn't that awful, a nice-looking boy like that, crippled for life?"

Jackie, the host nodded. He knew the boy—had heard the story of how he'd been crippled in childhood when he'd been thrown out of a wagon his fabulously wealthy father had bought him. "He's not the only tough case," Jackie said. "See that fellow over there with the red-headed girl? He looks as healthy as I do, but he's got a collapsed lung. The doctors have given him up. He's just waiting around until his time comes."

The discussion sobered the foursome. Harry, the smiling Kid, discovered another sad case in the room. "See him?" he indicated a youth only a little older than himself. "He's supposed to be dead by now. Too much brandy."

The two pretty girls shook their heads and murmured that it must be awful living like that in the shadow of Death.

The Kid gazed into the bottom of his glass. "Sure it is," he said. "But look at Jackie and me. I'm in perfect shape, and he's as healthy as those polo ponies of his. But I drive cars too fast when I've been drinking, and Jackie will probably get killed by a polo pony one of these days because he gets careless when he's up on a horse." He grinned. "I wouldn't take an even money bet that the two of us would outlive those three."

The Kid was a shrewd better. He would have lost that even money bet if he'd made it.

The draft came along, and among the first seniors who quit Yale to become an army air cadet was Harry Wilson, the Kid who was the best dancer in the younger cafe set. He was sent to an airfield in Alabama for his training, and a few short weeks later he carried out his own prophecy, with but one little miss. He hadn't been drinking—he was just in a hurry to get back to the airfield before his leave was up. His car left the narrow road and crashed into a tree; death was instantaneous.

But no polo pony got Jackie Milburn. He stopped playing polo for the more serious game that was at hand. Jackie, son of Devereaux Milburn, one of the all-time polo greats, also chose the air corps and was commissioned and promoted to first lieutenant in a short time.

He died a few weeks ago when a routine flight from his home airport wound up in a twisted mass of metal in Virginia.

The three who were "doomed"? Oh, they're still around, doing all right.

The Kid must have been psychic.

HOLLYWOOD—Set-seeing: Olivia De Havilland is playing Charlotte Bronte in "Devotion."

This is the picture which sets out to prove that the Heathcliffe of Emily Bronte's "Wuthering Heights" and the Rochester of Charlotte's "Jane Eyre" were both inspired by the same man — a gentleman with whom both the sheltered literary sisters were in love.

Coons

Ida Lupino plays Emily, whose novel already has been filmed. Twentieth Century-Fox is about to film Olivia's —I mean Charlotte's book. Joan Fontaine, Olivia's sister, will play Jane, and Orson Welles will be Rochester.

Says Olivia, a modern minx swathed in yards of billowing old English costume: "I have just finished writing 'Jane Eyre,' but I am thinking of sending the Fox studios a wire. I shall tell them that I have written a new version in which Jane disappears on Page 20.

"Or I shall tell them that I am not satisfied with their choice of a Jane, that Miss Fontaine is not my idea of the character at all. Perhaps I shall add that Miss De Havilland is much more nearly the type. . . ."

But Miss De Havilland, for all that is devoted to her own role in "Devotion," and you can be sure she doesn't envy sister Joan her "Jane Eyre." If she did, she wouldn't joke about it. . . .

There isn't any joking on the set of "Old Acquaintance." This is the story about two modern novelists, played by Bette Davis and Miriam Hopkins.

This reunion of Bette and Miriam inevitably recalls their supposed feuding when they were co-starring in "The Old Maid." Both were at great pains to deny any differences. "We are the best of friends," as Miriam insisted.

But there isn't any joking on the set today. "Bette is in a mood," confided a set-worker.

Bette is. Usually the first to call out a warm hello, Bette passes us, carefully doesn't see us.

The answer to the feud business is that Bette, as First Lady on the Warner lot, needn't have Miriam Hopkins in her pictures unless she wants her. Both are strong, personalities, and they wouldn't be human if they didn't eventually get on each other's nerves. It's my guess. I could have asked Bette about all this, but I make it a rule never to disturb a lady in a mood. It's dangerous. . . .

Humphrey Bogart is winding up "Action in the North Atlantic." He's tired. He has a bad cough from all the smoke from weeks of acting in the burning tanker sequences. He still has a laugh: "They've finally found a way to finish this picture," he says. "They're taking the camera away from us tomorrow."

INCREASE SEEN IN BEEF SUPPLY IN SOME AREAS

But Officials Are Cautious In Predicting Greater Amount To Civilians.

(By Associated Press)

Beef may soon be more plentiful in some sections of the country, but reports indicated today there will be no general alleviation of the civilian undersupply brought about by needs of the armed forces.

A spokesman for the American Meat institute in Chicago declared the army is taking very large quantities of beef and that "army needs come first."

A cause of the civilian undersupply, some meat packers asserted, is that the government has placed a ceiling on prices without a balancing ceiling on livestock.

There is a terrific loss in most beef and to remain in business we can't afford to kill any more animals than we have to," one Pittsburgh packer said. "It means we keep army orders filled but don't always have the 70 per cent of last year's meat available that can go to civilian trade."

In Los Angeles a packer spokesman said the situation was "greatly improved."

Throughout New England many persons were having trouble in getting steaks with their French fries.

The Chicago area has an undersupply, particularly in some cuts of beef, the American Meat institute spokesman said.

FOOD OUTPUT TO BE STUDIED

Richland War Board, Farm Groups To Meet on Problem at Courthouse.

The problem of producing more food for the war program with less machinery and help will come before the Richland county war board and representatives of farm and civic groups and other agencies at a meeting Thursday at 1:30 p. m. at the courthouse.

Guy L. Taylor, county war board chairman, arranged the session and will outline the objectives of the wartime food program in the county. The meeting will be in the common pleas courtroom.

Invited to participate in the discussion were representatives of the Grange, Farm Bureau, Milk Producers' association, livestock breeders, Farm Security officials, implement dealers, U. S. Employment service manager, and Chamber of Commerce officials.

"Richland county farmers have the toughest job ahead of them in 1943 that they have ever faced—producing food for an unlimited demand with less labor and machinery than they would like to have," Taylor said.

"It is the responsibility of the agencies represented on the Richland County Agricultural War board to help in any way possible to get the job done."

HERE'S GOOD FOOD NEWS----WE WILL GET MORE CANNED GOODS

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON— Civilian consumers are going to receive approximately from two to seven pounds more rationed canned goods annually than was previously announced.

The agriculture department admitted that, owing to its failure to include canned soups, baked beans and canned baby foods in computations, it erroneously set the ration at 33 pounds per capita year. The ration will range instead, the department said, from 35.4 pounds to 40.3 pounds.

"Estimated are exclusive," the department pointed out, "of home canned goods, nor do they reflect the variation in consumption of canned fruits and vegetables by age, occupational or regional groups.

"On the other hand uses of canned goods such as for commercial baking and for use in restaurants will reduce the quantity available to consumers from retail grocers."

The department made the following estimate of the amount of the various types of canned goods as they are expected to go into civilian supply:

Canned fruits, 10 to 12 pounds; canned vegetables, 18.2 to 19.4 pounds; baked beans, 1.5 to 2 pounds; canned soups, 4.4 to 5.4 pounds and canned baby foods 1.3 to 1.5 pounds.

A clipping from a recent issue of The News-Journal which was mailed to Actress Jeanette MacDonald today had brought a "thank you" note from the movie star to John W. Graham, general manager of The News-Journal. The clipping concerned the actress' husband, Capt. Gene Raymond, who is in the army air corps overseas. Recently, Capt. William Odell, Mansfield flier in England, wrote his family here that "If Jeanette MacDonald can't learn from the government where her husband is over here in England, tell her that I'm so close that I can spit on him." The letter was printed in The News-Journal, and Graham forwarded the clipping to the actress in Hollywood. Her reply said: "Many thanks for your note and the page containing the letter from Capt. Odell re my Capt. Gene. It was thoughtful of you to send it. Happy New Year. Cordially Jeanette MacDonald Raymond."

LEGISLATORS ASK OMISSION FROM ADDRESS

Influential Group Foresees Congress Fight Over Expansion of Plan.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—A group of influential legislators was reported today to have decided on a last-minute plea to President Roosevelt to omit social security revision from his legislative program.

Their decision, made known by high-ranking Democrats, came amid pleas for harmony and final arrangements for organization of the 78th congress which convenes tomorrow at noon.

Authoritative spokesmen said earlier suggestions to the president that the controversial social security subject be sidetracked for the duration had been rejected and that the preliminary draft of the message the executive will deliver Thursday discussed the subject at length.

"I sincerely hope it will be left out of the president's program at least for the time being," said one member of the group, "it is bound to touch off a fight that I believe is needless and may have unfortunate results."

Others expressed a conviction the new congress would deal only with essential war legislation and would refuse to handle domestic measures.

Leaders of both parties in the house agreed that on matters directly related to the war, there would be no legislative difficulties.

Vice President Wallace, in an effort to bring about a smooth working relationship in the senate, was reported planning to ask the leaders from both sides of the aisle to meet with him soon for a discussion of the problems likely to arise.

Senator Austin of Vermont, the assistant minority leader, said it was his belief the enlarged Republican representation in both houses now had a new responsibility to forget politics and give strong support to every essential war measure. This did not mean blind acceptance of everything the administration proposed, but intelligent backing for worthwhile proposals, he said.

Insists Military Must Decide On Output of Arms

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Production of military equipment is a job that only the army can plan, and therefore only the army should control, Undersecretary of War Robert P. Patterson said today.

"Nobody else knows what we need," he said in an interview, "and nobody else is competent to place the orders, supervise the production, make the inspections, accept deliveries.

The whole matter of military production is a continuous flow, from the strategic plan at the very beginning to the maintenance, repair and salvage in the field. As a continuous flow, it should be under a single control.

"Add to that is the very practical argument that the present system is working, and working extremely well. Why change it in the middle of a war?"

"The army has never had any intention or any desire to control the civilian economy."
